George Mason's graduate program in Middle East and Islamic Studies (MEIS) equips students with the tools and analytical skills for understanding major issues and debates in the study of the Middle East, Islam, and Muslim societies. Students study historical and contemporary aspects of society, economy, politics, and culture from both regional and global perspectives—with a strong emphasis on theory and methodology.

This program is designed to address the needs of aspiring scholars as well as practitioners. With our location in the Washington DC metro area, students have the opportunity to complete a practicum in the NGO, media, academic, or government sectors as part of their graduate program.

The unique combination of experienced faculty, broad selection of courses, stimulating events, and a wide variety of training and dissemination resources, this program represents an unparalleled engagement with its fields of study.

The MEIS program is offered by the College of Humanities and Social Sciences at George Mason University.

A new interdisciplinary graduate program engaging dynamics of continuity and change in the Middle East and Muslim world.

The application deadline for Fall 2015 entry is February 1, 2015.

http://meis.gmu.edu
meis@gmu.edu

The Political Economy Summer Institute
Public Events | GMU

Keynote Lecture by Robert Vitalis

The Political Economy of the Arab Uprisings

Monday, 12 June, 6 PM
Commerce Building
Conference Room, 3rd Floor

Sandra Halperin
Reflections on Political Resistance & the Roots of Power

Joel Beinin
Labor Movements and Popular Uprisings in Tunisia and Egypt

Bassam Haddad
Political-Economy and the Roots of the Syrian Uprising

Shana Marshall
The Military and the State

Moderator: Sherene Seikaly
Discussant: Samer Abboud

The Political Economy Summer Institute is in its second consecutive year of operation here at George Mason University. These public events are presented by the the Arab Studies Institute and Middle East and Islamic Studies Program and co-sponsored by Philosophy and Political Economy, Schar School for Policy and Government, History Department, and Global Affairs.

RSVP to info@PoliticalEconomyProject.org

www.PoliticalEconomyProject.org